March 19, 17: 00

"In order to ensure the implementation of the rights and freedoms of citizens, as well as taking into account the situation associated with the spread of a new coronavirus infection, starting from March 19, 2020, foreign citizens can extend their temporary stay on the territory of the Russian Federation.

To do this, they need to apply to the nearest territorial body of the Ministry of internal Affairs of Russia with a statement made in any form.

Citizens who arrived in Russia on the basis of a visa will be extended its validity period, regardless of the purpose of entry into Russia. If your existing visa has already expired, your temporary stay will also be extended.

Citizens who arrived in Russia in a manner that does not require a visa are granted an extension of their stay on the territory of the Russian Federation, including if it has already expired.

Applications for permits to attract and use foreign workers and work permits for foreign citizens located on the territory of the Russian Federation are being resumed.

In addition, migrant workers can apply for new patents without having to leave the Russian Federation and without being held administratively liable for violating the deadline for submitting the relevant applications.

Foreign citizens living in Russia on the basis of a temporary residence permit or residence permit will be extended their stay if the document issued to them expires, " said Irina Volk, an official representative of the Ministry of internal Affairs of Russia.
